

The story by a Polar bear

I am a polar bear with a lot on my mind

My habitat is disappearing fast and my family and friends are in danger

However undignified I decided ,with the help of Greenpeace, to tell the world that the arctic is in trouble. I have now been to the Glastonbury Festival and stayed in the Greenpeace field where I met thousands of people that understood my fears Greenpeace helped me to move on to the West Country to tell more people.

I stayed at Living Coast for a few weeks where two lovely students groomed me and fixed my fur. It was interesting meeting the penguins from Antarctica as we had so many problems in common. They are worried about the melting of the icecaps and the pollution of their home.

After travelling a few more miles I finally arrived at the seaside in Teignmouth where new friends from T.R.A.I.L. have been telling people to keep the seas and oceans free of rubbish for 10 years. They were very pleased to see me

My T.R.A.I.L. friends made me an igloo so I would feel at home. It was interesting to meet the other exhibits as they all had the same worries about the planet and tell all of the visitors that come past. Lots of the visitors agree that we are in trouble. It is a small world as I talked to some people I met last year at Glastonbury. It was good to catch up.

They made me some armour which keeps off the rain and the sun but best of all it makes me into an arctic warrior

I can now continue to roar my message for all of you to protect my world.
Are you listening!
